CHINESE LADY HURT
IN AERO FLIGHT

Daughter of General Tso-ping Received Perhaps Fatal Injuries in Flight Near Peking.

(Correspondence of Associated Press)
Peking, Nov. 1.—Miss Chian, the daughter of General Chiang Tso-ping, a member of the Chinese general staff, was dangerously injured in an aeroplane accident at the first public exhibition of the army aviation corps recently held at Nanyuan near Peking. She made the flight with Pilot Yao, one of the best aeronauts in the Chinese army. Adverse air currents interfered with the manipulation of the machine, which dropped from a height of several hundred feet within sight of thousands of spectators who attended the exhibition. The pilot wore a heavy safety helmet and escaped with slight injuries, but Miss Chian wore no helmet and sustained concussion of the brain.

The aviation meet continued for two days and attracted immense crowds from all over North China. Ten army aeroplanes participated. Flights were made both in biplanes and monoplanes by Chinese aviators, who showed great skill. Most of the aeroplanes used were built by the Chinese under the direction of French mechanics. Tom Gun, an American-born Chinese, who has gained considerable fame as an aeronaut, has been engaged as an instructor in the Chinese army aviation school.

The Nanyuan aviation grounds are located ten miles from Peking. During the meet aeroplanes flew over the Chinese capital every morning and every afternoon, attracting much attention and causing not a little uneasiness among the superstitious coolies, who regard them as evil omens.

MORE ABOUT RATE
"TARIFF 2-B"

Resume of the Famous Rate Fight Known as the Shreveport Case.

(By Associated Press.)
Dallas, Texas, Nov. 1.—Increased freight rates, known to the railroad world as "Tariff 2-B," were to become effective for all Texas railroads today. The increase is a result of the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision at Washington some time ago in the so-called Shreveport rate case. The commission decided that so-called class rates, effective in a division of the state known as "East Texas," were discriminatory to Shreveport, whose commercial organizations have long sought to have them annulled.

The Interstate Commerce Commission granted the Shreveport request and made the new rates effective today.

Protest was entered by the state of Texas in behalf of the Texas Railroad Commission. The state was aided in its legal fight by the Texas Industrial Traffic League. It was sought of the Interstate Commerce Commission to further postpone the effectiveness of the new rates until further adjustments could be made.

Attorney General B. F. Looney went to Washington for the state and led the fight against the commission's decision. He attacked the new rates on the ground that they were unfair to the state as a whole, while they might be of benefit to East Texas in its controversy with Shreveport. He asked that the effectiveness of the rates be confined to a district defined as East Texas. Looney pointed out that the Interstate Commerce Commission did not intend to have wholesale raises of freight rates over the state, but merely directed the railroads to cure the alleged discrimination against Shreveport in the eastern part of Texas.

SNAKE DRILL.

A large crowd of city school boys celebrated Halloween last night by pulling off a snake drill on Main street. They were led by Phoebe Park, with young Showers acting as yell leader, and their serpentine drill and yells were a splendid imitation of the larger schools and colleges. They kept up this merry-making for several hours.

SPOOK CALLERS.

While the Eagle editor and other employees were hard at work last night in the dark hours, the office was visited by a number of the strangest callers that ever honored our sanctum with a call before. They were genuine spooks, wearing long, flowing white robes and head coverings of the same material. They came in silent as the night itself, bowed, but spoke not one word, and departed as quietly and silently as they came. Our only surmise as to whom these strange creatures might be was they were a bunch of jolly Halloweeners on their way to a Halloween entertainment and stopped by to honor us with a call.
